

Physics III: Chapter 35 - Image Formation

Jake Kratt

February 5, 2025

35.1. Images Formed by Flat Mirrors

The most obvious example of an image formed by a flat mirror would be something like your bathroom mirror. You see it every day (hopefully), and it reflects an image of yourself back at you, though it's flipped. The distance p is the object distance.